How to spot fake news
Awesome catalog hacks
More and more Americans get their news from social media, where “clickbait” headlines, GIFs, videos and memes abound. It’s easy to mistake fake news stories for the real thing, especially when they are liked and shared by your family and friends.

Our librarians are experts with advanced degrees in information literacy. We have the tools and resources to empower you to give a critical eye to your feed and to keep you from falling for fake news.

We have library-exclusive research sites. If you’re looking for info, these vetted sites are far superior to a dubious Google search. We’ve already done the work of evaluation for you and select only quality sources. See our research sites at tscpl.org/research.

The library has a ton of books to help you survive a fall down an unreliable interweb rabbit-hole with your senses still intact. In an age of information overload, libraries are a mecca for information supplied with relevancy and neutrality.

We’re real, live human beings that you can text, call or email at tscpl.org/ask.

Find more in-depth information on how to spot fake news at our website.

You can rely on us to provide you with the information you need, from trusted sources, both in book and digital format. Didn’t know the library did that? Well, now you do.
How the library impacts kids

The library is your best resource for raising a reader and a lifelong learner. Our work transforming the lives of Shawnee County kids is part of the reason your library is the 2016 Library of the Year. Here are some of the ways we’re working to improve the lives of children.

Learn & Play Bus
In Shawnee County, only 31% of children have a formal preschool experience. We bring the preschool to families right in their neighborhoods on the new Learn & Play Bus, where kids can learn vital literacy skills for free and in a super fun environment. See page 8 for schedule.

Family Place Library
The Family Place Library initiative focuses on the development of children birth to 5 years old by providing interactive games and activity stations, Parent/Child Workshops and storytimes that grow a love of reading.

AdventureMobile
When the AdventureMobile rolls up to a Shawnee County school, students come out with their class to return books and check out 2 items. Teachers can also request library materials to be brought out to supplement their lesson plans. In the summertime, the AdventureMobile features a new critter each week, and kids can join the Critter Club to win prizes.

I Read Program
Each year, as kindergartners graduate in Shawnee County Schools, the library is there to join in the celebration and provide a free book and a library card to participating families. Kids who already have existing library cards are given a brand new I Read card. The initiative is supported by the Robert C. and Dorothy L. Harder Book Fund established through the Library Foundation. In 2015-16, 8 elementary schools participated. In 2017, the library is looking to raise that number to 17 participating schools.

Kansas Connections
Library staff turn classrooms into a virtual field trip with over 40 programs on animals, science, language, fine art, or social studies.

Meal Programs
For some Shawnee County kids, lunch is hard to come by during the summer. In 2015, the library became a dependable location for lunch with our summer meal program for kids 0-18. In 2016, the library served 3,105 lunches total to an average of 60 kids a day. During the school year, kids who visit the library after school are hungry, but their next meal is at least a few hours away. When kids are hungry, it’s harder to read, learn and get their homework done. That’s why the library provides an afterschool snack for kids ages 0-18, every weekday from 3:30-4:30 p.m.

TOPEKA & SHAWNEE COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY NEWS

FEBRUARY-MARCH 2017
Meet the trustee
Jim Edwards

The library welcomes its newest trustee, Jim Edwards, to the Board of Trustees. Jim holds a BS from the University of Nebraska at Kearney. Now retired, his career spanned 36 years as a Chamber of Commerce education executive and 10 years with the Kansas Association of School Boards. We spent some time getting to know Jim, and asked him a few questions about his love for libraries.

Q: What is your fondest library memory?
A: As a child growing up in Scottsbluff, Nebraska, I remember loving to ride my bicycle to the public library in the town and sit there almost every Saturday and Sunday pouring over magazines in addition to the sports sections of the Lincoln and Omaha newspapers. Also, when I would get done reading those for the day, I would go over and grab a World Book Encyclopedia and just start reading it in no particular order and on no particular subject.

Q: Why did you want to join the library’s Board of Trustees?
A: My wife and I love Topeka and want its citizens to have the opportunities to grow and prosper in the future because of a well-established and functional library. After expressing this interest to Mayor Wolgast, I was fortunate to be appointed to the library Board of Trustees.

Q: What is your hope for the Board’s work in coming years?
A: My hope is that the Board continues to ensure that library operations, strategic and otherwise, work toward the facilitation of its strategic plan. Topeka and Shawnee County have an outstanding asset in its library and the Board of Trustees need to assist by guaranteeing that this asset is not only maintained but that its programs continue to match the needs, present and future, of the communities it represents.

Library @ Work grows

You're sitting in your cubicle plugging away at a project when the promise of an entertaining evening arrives — books, movies, music — directly in the palms of your keyboard-weary hands. That’s Library @ Work. Hundreds of Topeka workers utilize this convenient service to get library goodies delivered directly to the workplace.

In 2016, the library added several new Library @ Work sites to our ever-growing list. They are:
- Washburn University
- Landon State Office Building
- Eisenhower State Office Building
- Kansas Department of Labor
- Kansas Department of Revenue

With the addition of these sites, over 200 employees signed up for library cards. In exchange, we deliver checkouts to their workplace 2-3 times a week.

Library @ Work sends a message to employees that these organizations value learning and professional development. It also saves employees time so they can focus on work and life after work.

"It's a great benefit for employees," says Thad Hartman, community services manager.

If your organization would like to implement the Library @ Work service, contact Thad at thatman@tscpl.org, 785-580-4511.
Why creative learning is essential & what your library offers

Kids who build fortresses in Minecraft today are developing skills to become competitive and cutting edge members of the workforce in the future. All that from a video game? Actually, yes.

STEM educational opportunities engage kids in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics. In an increasingly tech-led economy, these fields are certainly going to be essential if they aren’t already.

That’s why the library provides programming where librarians and local kids explore these important concepts together, utilizing library resources to boost interest and keep that curiosity stoked with each visit.

Kids learn science skills through recurring programs like Anyone Can Cook and Factual Fun. They’re immersed in technology at Teen Tech Fair, Hour of Code and in the library’s Make-It Lab. Minecraft at Your Library builds engineering and math skills. All these events are also a whole lot of fun.

We offer one unique event that takes STEM learning to the next level. Gathering STEAM incorporates all those essential tech skills, but accesses them through art. The class is taught by the Alice C. Sabatini Gallery’s Betsy Roe, who’s both an artist and an educator.

"Science, technology, engineering and math are essential skills for the next generation," says Betsy. "But STEM education can be limiting, because future challenges require creative solutions."

At Gathering STEAM, kids 8-12 participate in hands-on activities that combine art with STEM. They’re learning skills that challenge them to think both critically and creatively.

"Art integrated with STEM helps ready today’s children with problem-solving, critical thinking and making skills in a more open-ended way," says Betsy. "With art, learning is fun and more approachable for kids."

To see what’s happening, check out the listings on pages 10-13 and visit tscp.org/events.

Tween librarian Jason Lamb guides kids through the virtual worlds they construct in the bi-weekly event, Minecraft at Your Library.

Hidden Figures exposed

Teens in Topeka are learning an important story that was hidden for far too long.

In January, Topeka teens in USD 501 will attend a special screening of Hidden Figures, a major motion picture about African-American women mathematicians who worked at NASA to put John Glen on the moon. After the film, teens will have a Q&A session with some local "hidden figures."

The film is based on the nonfiction book of the same name by author Margot Lee Shetterly. 100 area juniors and seniors will receive free copies of the book.

Students and adults can attend an African American Read-In to read the book together as a community. The Read-In will be held February 11 in two sessions. The teen session will be from 10 a.m.-12 p.m. in the Lingo Story Room. The adult session will be from 12-2 p.m. in Marvin Auditorium 101C.

These events are part of the library’s celebration of African American History Month, in partnership with the Topeka Chapter of the Links, Hollywood Theaters and USD 501.

Where to go for new books

There are hundreds of thousands of books at the library. There are classics, memoirs, technical guides, cookbooks, you name it. Anything you want or need, chances are, we’ve got it.

When it comes to brand-new books, fresh off the press with that lovely new book smell – we’ve got those, too.

You can find all the newest books in the library’s New Books area right across from the Kids Library.

The area, which also houses computers, movies and music, was established through a gift from the Hall Harrison family.

"The New Books section is the place to go for all the latest publications, both fiction and nonfiction," says Scarlett Fisher-Herreman, technical services supervisor.

Alcatraz vs. the Evil Librarians
by Brandon Sanderson
This clever, funny, five-book fantasy series follows Alcatraz Smedry, a 13-year-old orphan with a special talent for breaking things. Turns out, Alcatraz isn’t an orphan at all and members of his family all have special talents, like getting lost or always arriving late — which isn’t a bad thing if what you’re late for is an assassination attempt. Alcatraz soon realizes his family is part of a group of freedom fighters who resist the Evil Librarians — the secret cult who actually rule the world. The ensuing story involves talking dinosaurs, sentient romance novels and a dungeon-like labyrinth hiding beneath the innocent-looking downtown library.

Here are some tips for using the library’s new online catalog (catalog.tscpl.org) to make your library experience AWESOME and your reading and watching life much easier!

You want to find the movie those two actors are in.
Type their names into the keyword search and add the word DVD — our new catalog will search everything we know about the movie to return the result you need. Kevin Bacon and Julia Roberts is Flatliners. Cary Grant and Deborah Kerr is An Affair to Remember. Drew Barrymore and Adam Sandler — that’s three movie results. Luckily, the catalog shows the DVD covers and you can choose between The Wedding Singer, 50 First Dates and Blended.

You want to recommend your favorite books to everyone else but you are tired of telling people over and over again what the best books are and why you like them so much.
Problem solved! Make a list to share with friends — you can add anything in our library and even link to things on the internet. What are your personal Top 10 romantic comedies? Your favorite graphic novels to read with your young kids? The best books you read in 2016? Make a list and share it out! People love hearing what others are reading, and you can influence your friends and family with your recommendations.

You finished a book, movie or album and want to tell everyone it was great. Or sometimes, you want to tell everyone that it was terrible.
Use the rating and reviewing features to share your opinion about materials in our library collection. Showcase your best Roger Ebert impression and share out your review in your own social media. You can be internet famous AND contribute to your community of readers. Newly-reviewed and rated titles display front and center on the catalog’s homepage.

You want instant access to the library catalog.
If you carry a smartphone in your pocket, open the library catalog in your browser and "Add to Home Screen" (iPhone) or "Add Shortcut on Home Screen" (Android) to give yourself a convenient, direct link to the mobile-friendly catalog. When you are out and about and hear about a book or movie you want to get from the library, go ahead and take a moment to look it up and place a hold.
This is where the sports-obsessed can reach an all-new level of worship. Let your passion for the game lead you to the library, where you can find all the stuff sports fans crave.

Librarian Nate Hohl is the official caretaker of a huge selection of sports materials and a bona fide sports enthusiast. Nate writes sports columns for tscpl.org, leads Sports Trivia and coordinates the NCAA bracket challenge in the spring and fantasy football league in the fall.

"It's a fun thing and a diversion from the stress of life," says Nate. "But, more than that, it's something that brings us together as a community. Our favorite sports teams become a part of our identity."

Nate serves on the committee of the Shawnee County Sports Hall of Fame, which meets each year to decide which local athletes to induct into the Hall, housed in the library's Sports Neighborhood since 2006.

There, you can find local sports memorabilia like jerseys and autographed balls. View profiles on each Hall of Fame honoree in an action-packed digital display.

The Hall of Fame is reproduced online. Check it out at tscpl.org/sports.

Honoree of the Sports Hall of Fame and big fan of the library is Dale Cushinberry, a Highland Park High School basketball legend and the school's former principal.

"In order to be truly successful in life, you must have a strong body and a strong mind," says Dale. "You feed the body through nutrition and exercise. You feed the mind through knowledge, experience and reading."

Take Dale's excellent advice, and start training your mind through books and other resources at the library catered especially to those who live for the game.
One of the library’s two teen hangout spaces, The Edge, has a fresh new look.

Library maintenance staff made updates to carpeting, furniture and paint in the teen room in December 2016. The space now features new collaborative spaces, lounging and social spaces for contemporary teens and charging docks for devices.

“The Edge is visited daily by 40-50 teens and has been well-used,” says Marie Pyko, Public Services director. The Edge opened in 2008.

“It was time to not only spruce up the space, but also to allow today’s teens to help choose the colors, activities and furniture. It’s their space.”

The Edge is one of two teen areas in the library. Teens can use David J’s, which is near the Kids Library, to access young adult literature, graphic novels and comics of interest to the 12-18 year old age group.

The Library Foundation supplied funds for The Edge remodel.
